HONOURS IN CURATORSHIP 2019
The Honours programme in Curatorship is offered by the Michaelis School of Fine Art’s Centre for Curating the Archive in close collaboration with Iziko Museums.

The programme offers courses in the theory and practice of curatorship, developing in students a sophisticated awareness of the practicalities, politics and poetics of working with collections of many kinds. Students are encouraged to bring the disciplinary insights of their undergraduate major (whether this be in the visual arts, the humanities or the sciences) to the curating of both material and virtual collections, and are offered opportunities to work on exhibitions in real spaces and in the digital realm. A major aim of this programme is to introduce students, through seminars, fieldwork and workshops, to the central skills of a curator: to understand objects and how to research them, to work with collections, articulating them in exhibitions, and to collaborate with artists, mediating their production.

The course prepares students for further postgraduate study or possible work as curators, museum educators, collection managers, and for positions that require the use, interpretation, display and manipulation of collections.

PROGRAMME DESCRIPTION
PROGRAMME STRUCTURE (visit www.cca.ac.za for a more detailed description of each component)

Compulsory components
Critical thinking in curatorship
Research essay/project

Elective courses (three required)
Practical communication
Working with museum collections
Virtual display
Local issues in curatorship

Other possible electives
An elective from another humanities faculty honours course may be chosen where appropriate to replace one of the above with permission from the programme convener, Professor Pippa Skotnes.

Workshops
A range of compulsory introductory and specialist workshops will be offered in the fields of curation and conservation.

Internships
The programme includes a mandatory sixty-hour internship, at a museum or gallery, where students are exposed to curatorial working practice. Students’ performance is evaluated by internal and external supervisors.
ADMISSIONS

Academic criteria
Applications are invited from students who have completed an undergraduate degree in the visual arts or cognate fields, including such disciplines as art history, archaeology, visual studies, history and anthropology, as well as any of the sciences where collections are important for research, or for an understanding of the history of the discipline.

Applicants are required to submit hard copies of the following before 31 October 2018:
01. a detailed narrative curriculum vitae;
02. a letter of no more than two pages detailing your background and reasons for wishing to study curatorship, as well as your special areas of interest that are relevant to the programme;
03. academic transcripts;
04. the names and contact details of two academic referees;
05. a sample piece of academic writing;
06. a 500-word research proposal
